I'm currently working on a new script to display the packet listing from a database table. It should make it easier to link to individual packets instead of having to say "Look for this one", and it even looks nice thanks to a script of Cerium's that I modified. It can now be accessed by clicking on the Packet Listing option on the menu. Let me know if you see anything that is incorrect.

If you would like to include it on your site, it generates at <http://d1st0rt.sscentral.com/packet>
