

Site Upgrade Complete

In February I installed a newer version of the CMS I use to maintain this site because I am too lazy to write my own. Now it's May and I've finally gotten around to finishing up everything that needed to be done on that copy. So I went through the delightful process of recursively deleting the old one over FTP and moved this over from /new. It should be a mostly transparent change anyways as I kept the same theme and copied over all of the content I had before. Some new additions you'll notice:

I wrote two more TWCore tutorials focusing on how to use TimerTasks, and I added a menu option on the left for the new packet listing script I'm working on (very slowly). Enjoy the new stuff!
